

Bloomberg Markets Concepts Course - remote

Economics students who are not resident in Pavia and graduating June to December 2020 will be given the opportunity to attend remotely BMC – Bloomberg Markets Concepts Course.

Those who are interested must, upon approval of the supervisor, apply to the Library sending a request to the following address: bloomberg@unipv.it

The library staff will contact the user to provide details on attending the BMC course remotely.

Bloomberg Markets Concepts Course

Course description

Bloomberg Market Concept is a self-paced e-learning course by Bloomberg that can be completed within a week and the participants are awarded with a certificate of COMPLETION at the end of the course. (The final certificate will not report the score gained).

This course primarily includes 8 hours of video tutorials which utilize Bloomberg data, indices, analytics and news stories to provide knowledge of market essentials to the participants.

The course material is divided into 4 modules dedicated to specific market sectors (Economic Indicators, Currencies, Fixed Income, Equities) and participants are presented with 120 assessment questions throughout the modules.

Each of these modules consists of several sub-modules and the participants are expected to acquire knowledge of at least one sub-module per sitting.

This course also aims at introducing participants to the Bloomberg Terminal which is commonly employed by financial services firms. Along with the course contents, participants would be introduced to new Bloomberg Terminal functions at every step which can help retrieve, display, read and interpret data on the terminal. It offers a kind of limited practical exposure to Bloomberg Terminal which can come in handy later.

It is strongly recommended not to take the course lightly and devote enough time to go through the contents and master them to be able to take full advantage in terms of acquiring useful knowledge, skills and capabilities.